

What and How to Fish Dynamite Is Poor Bait S. P. C. P. F. Tells 'em

BY FLOYD A. TIMMERMAN.

Today was a tough one for the reporter in search of news. From place to place where news at normal times is forthcoming every day, he came away with empty hands, but his head was still ringing with suggestions to use a fly here and bait there and don't use dynamite for electricity on the poor fish.

The composite advice of scores of expert fishermen who have caught whales and sharks from the waters of the Ogden and Weber and its tributaries sounds something like this: "Get up at 3 o'clock and stand on your rock until 4 o'clock, and don't use the fish in the meantime."

Watch for pickpockets in the crowd surrounding the river bank. "When you look one, haul him in, and cut your initials on him, then let him go and fight. Otherwise arguments may arise as to ownership."

Don't allow spectators to spoil the fish game. Get your reservations early, and hold them against all comers.

"Be sure to throw your fish back in the stream after you have had your fun with him. Give your fellow man a chance."

"Don't use minnows for bait over fourteen inches in length, and be sure you feed them good before throwing them in, for they might eat the trout."

"The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Poor Fish has ruled that it is not good sportsmanship to fool the fish on rubber grasshoppers or cork minnows. They might suffer from appendicitis."

"The fish and game department will not be responsible for lost hats and coats. Check them. Lost children will probably be found at the hatchery, getting their first look at the mountain trout."

These are but a few of the sound reasonings which came from the army of trout chasers today. Others are not fit for print. Lord have mercy on the poor fish.

But one accident marred the Gypsy tour of motorcycle riders from Salt Lake, Provo and Ogden in South Fork canyon yesterday afternoon. The accident happened near Wildwood in Ogden canyon and resulted in a cold bath for Harry Steadard and Frankie Wilson. In rounding a turn in the canyon the machine which the men were riding skidded, throwing the riders into the river.

Aside from being wet the two men were unhurt and after a few minutes continued their trip to Salt Lake.

There were about 75 machines in the party nearly all carrying double.

The outing was given by the Firestone Tire company of Salt Lake and Lon Claffin, Louis Anderson and Norman Hopper, motorcycle dealers, who bore the expense of the picnic.

Field events were as follows:

Three-legged race, G. H. Faulkner and C. Krotzer, Ogden.

Sack race, C. Keeler, Ogden.

Hundred yard race for men, J. Solomon, Salt Lake.
